

Not sure which one to use? Practise one/ones with us!

i When you don't want to repeat a noun in your sentence and want to replace it you need to use: one (for only one thing) or ones (for more than one).

For example: All the shirts are nice, but I prefer the red one.

I found some interesting new books!

Which ones?

In some sentences signal words can help you:

Signal word for one: another, the, a/an

Signal word for ones: some, these/those

?

Which dress do you want to wear? - The red _____, please!

- ones
- one

?

Do you like your new school? - Yes, I prefer it to the old _____.

- one
- ones

?

Can you please get the extra chairs from the living room? - The yellow _____?

- ones
- one

?

I finished that book, so I am looking for another _____ now.

- ones
- one

?

Three cream buns, please! - Do you mean these _____?

- ones
- one

?

That chewing gum was so nice, can I have another _____?

- ones
- one

I lost my sport shoes, I need to get new _____.

- one
- ones

Would you like the soft or the hard ball? - The soft _____, please!

- ones
- one

Do you want to watch the first Harry Potter film tonight? - No, let's watch another _____.

- one
- ones

Can you get me those pens there? - Which _____?

- ones
- one

Which coat is yours? - That _____ with the big pockets.

- one
- ones

Which trousers do you like best? - The red _____!

- ones
- one

Do you want to share my sandwich? - No, thanks, I will get my own _____.

- one
- ones

I need more plates, could you please get the _____ from Granny?

- ones
- one