

Let's practise the 1st conditional!

i We use the first conditional to talk about future actions that can only happen when a certain condition is fulfilled. This condition is told in the if-clause.

That means we use the 1st conditional for:

future consequences - If I start a part-time job, I will earn my own money.

warnings and threats - If you do that, I won't talk to you ever again!

negotiations - If you do my chores today, I will do yours tomorrow.

How to form the 1st conditional:

Use the present tense in the if-sentence and will/won't or the imperative in the main sentence. The sentence can either start with the if-sentence or finish with it. For example: I will do your chores tomorrow if you do mine today OR If you do my chores today, I will do yours tomorrow.
